

DIXON HIGH IS NEAR CHAMPIONSHIP OF R. R. VALLEY

NO NEWS OF JOHN NORTON LATE TODAY

Former Dixonite Has Disappeared—Choir Master in Big Church

Chicago, Nov. 16.—(AP)—No clew whatever to the whereabouts of John W. Norton, organist at St. James Episcopal church, had been obtained today. The organist and choir master, who formerly lived in Dixon, Ill., left his home in Evanston last Thursday and disappeared.

Norton, widely known as organist and choir master, had been subject to severe headaches and he is believed to have gone away somewhere for a rest, having drawn $150 from a bank before he vanished. His wife said he had suffered a nervous breakdown a year ago. Hospitals and sanitariums in Chicago and vicinity have been canvassed without result.

Norton had been organist for years at St. James which is adjacent to the exclusive Lake Shore Drive district at a point where the new north side business district is encroaching on residential sections.

WELL KNOWN IS DIXON.

Dixon.—The many friends of Mr. Norton in this city are very much concerned about his disappearance. Mr. Norton came to Dixon from Morrison and lived here for a number of years and made friends because of his splendid character and attractive personality. For a number of years he lived in the household of Rev. Sage, formerly pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal church. Each summer it has been Mr. Norton's practice to bring his choir boys from St. James Church in Chicago for a two weeks' camp and outing at Dixon. They camp on the north shore of the river above the Assembly Park.

Mr. Norton was married some years ago to Mrs. Ryerson, a daughter of a former rector of St. James Church and very prominent in society on the north side in Chicago. His reputation as a choir master and organist was very high indeed. He had studied abroad and had become the head of the musical department of one of Chicago's greatest churches.

The trap was sprung by Sheriff Frank Martin of Scott County, where Simons was convicted for the slaying of Ferguson, a resident of Atlanta, Michigan, who was beaten to death.

The execution took place in an old cell house. Simons marched up to the gallows with the air of a man resigned to his fate, who wanted to get the execution out of the way as quickly as possible.

Eagle Gave Thad Beck Severe Jolt

T. E. Beck, local sanitary engineer, is congratulating himself and so are some of his friends, to whom Thad has related his experience of Saturday morning with a real live eagle. When Thad opened up his plumbing establishment in the basement of the Baker building at the corner of River street and Galena avenue Saturday morning, he discovered a large bird blinking at him from its perch on his work bench. Perplexed at the size of the bird and its actions when it opened a hooked beak and ruffled its feathers, the plumber seized a broom with which to protect himself until he could back out of the door, which he did with haste. It later developed that some of his friends had captured the eagle Friday night on Myer's farm and while hunting coon, and had placed it in his place of business for safe keeping.

PATIALA HAS RICHEST KING IN THE WORLD

Anyway, That's What Shopkeepers Think of the Maharaja

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—The "richest ruler in the world"—or so the Geneva shopkeepers assert—is the Maharajah of Patiala who has been visiting the city as one of the Indian delegates to the League of Nations assembly.

"If one's only previous knowledge of Patiala has been that its ruler is reputed to be fabulously wealthy, he will probably expect to find the state huge and tremendously productive," says a bulletin from the Washington D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "The state is a little larger than Connecticut—by no means as extensive as others of the native states of India. It is subject to droughts, and, on their heels, famines. This situation has been bettered in recent years, however, by the construction of irrigation canals by the state, and by the digging of many wells."

"The state lies in the eastern plains of the Punjab, and Patiala town, the capital, is within 50 miles of Simla, India's summer capital. One will look in vain on many maps for this state of a modern Croesus. Its identity is lost by being merged into the 'Punjab States,' of which the other two are Jind and Nabha. Patiala is the big brother, however, taking up five-sevenths of the combined area."

"Patiala is ruled by a Sikh house although these warrior religionists make up barely 22 per cent of the population. The Maharajah's local importance is great since he is the leading Sikh ruler of the Punjab. His ancestors were loyal to the British during the Indian mutiny, and the state's territory has been increased several times since by British conquests."

"Operating a government is so simple in Patiala. The country has among its inhabitants certain castes and tribes whose members are professional criminals. Furthermore they are specialists. One tribe will devote itself to cattle rustling; another to housebreaking and a third to highway robbery. The population is backward in education, only 24 per cent being literate."

AGED BURGLAR SHOT IN CHURCH ROBBER BOXES

St. Louis Detective Has Gun Battle With 73 Year Old Thief

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 16.—(AP)—A 73 year old burglar was shot and severely wounded early today in a revolver fight in the rectory of St. Marks Catholic church by City Detective Jerry Flynn, who had been stationed to catch a persistent contributor box thief.

The fight took place in a darkened hallway with the aid of flash lights. Each fired two shots. The prowler who gave his name as Julius Zalsner and said he had come here from Colorado three weeks ago, was shot in the right leg and in the right arm. The detective was untouched.

The aged man was barefooted, hatless and without a coat and explained that a confederate, known to him only as "Jack," had taken charge of his clothing before boosting him into a window of the church. He admitted he had served a penitentiary term and several jail sentences for petty thefts.

The Rev. Peter O'Rourke, pastor of St. Mark's, estimated approximately $1,000 had been stolen from votive offering receptacles and poor boxes at the church in the last year in a series of systematic thefts.

Many Claims Against Sanitary District Still to be Heard

Morris, Ill., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Seventeen claims against the Chicago Sanitary District involving approximately $300,000 remained to be heard by the Illinois Valley Claims Commission that resumed its hearings here this morning. Eight cases were disposed of at an early hearing, but findings were not announced and it was expected that the commission's ruling on these cases would be issued within the next few days.

One litigant, John Peacock, aged Grundy county farmer, has been killed by a fast Rock Island train since his case was heard last month. He was seeking $4,000 for overflow damages to 40 acres of land.

Many of the remaining claims are located in LaSalle county. All claim permanent damage to lands bordering on the Illinois river because of the overflow resulting from increased flow of water through the sanitary canal and river ruining tile drainage systems and washing away crops.

CAILLAUX SAYS U. S. HAD OWN DEBT NOTIONS

Ex-Prime Minister Tells of His Attempt to Settle Loan

Paris, Nov. 16.—(AP)—M. Caillaux's domineering speeches since his removal from prime minister have been a weekly feature of France's political life, receiving great prominence in the press and arousing much popular interest. Referring to his unsuccessful debt funding mission to Washington, M. Caillaux yesterday said:

"It was extremely difficult and well nigh impossible to bring the United States around to our point of view. The American nation which France had never before taken up the question of its debt, had an opinion of its own."

"Owing to this very lack of previous contact between the United States and France, such opinion in America was as far removed as possible from our own."

"I felt and I am confident I have done my duty, that was better for France to resign herself to passing through a hard period than to yield before what I consider excessive demands."

STEPHENSON'S AIDS OUT; FLEE FROM JUSTICE

Authorities Failed to Make Them Give Bond for Other Trial

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry acquitted on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Miss Madge Oberholzer of Indianapolis, but facing other charges as alleged henchmen of D. C. Stephenson, were sought today as fugitives from justice.

After they had departed from the jail here on Saturday night, leaving Stephenson, who had been convicted of Miss Oberholzer's murder, it was discovered they had failed to provide proper bonds for appearance in Indianapolis, where charges of conspiracy to commit a felony are pending against them. These charges were made following investigation of a fire which damaged Stephenson's suburban home near Indianapolis.

Stephenson, who was convicted of second degree murder, remained in jail here awaiting sentence of life imprisonment. Judge Sparks of Rushville, Ind., had not yet decided when he would pass sentence.

When calls brought no response they searched the barn and in the hay loft made the gruesome discovery of his body hanging from a rafter.

SOUTHERN BEAUTY DIES TRAGICALLY IN CHICAGO HOTEL

Mrs. Florence Hood Suicided After Drinking Debauch

Chicago, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The visit of Mrs. Florence Manly Hood, young society matron of Birmingham Alabama to Chicago to obtain an apartment for the contemplated arrival of her husband, had ended in death.

Mrs. Hood took poison yesterday in her apartment in a fashionable north side hotel, where she had registered with John Cashion, Chicago business man, as "Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hood." Cashion, who left the apartment shortly before the young woman swallowed the poison but hurried back upon learning of her act, was detained pending action of the coroner. Mrs. Hood's husband, Walter M. Hood, general counsel for the Alabama Power Company, was expected here in time for the inquest.

Called For Help

Before lapsing into unconsciousness, Mrs. Hood had summoned the manager of the hotel and a physician. They found a half filled vial of shoe cleanser in her room. She died 20 minutes after being taken to a hospital.

Had Been Drinking

Cashion said he believed Mrs. Hood took the poison during an aberration following a visit to the apartment of a friend at which he asserted both drank considerable liquor. He took her back to his apartment, he related, after which he departed to join friends. Cashion said that Mrs. Hood, whom he had known six years, arrived in Chicago last Friday to obtain an apartment because her husband planned to make an extensive business visit here.

"I registered as her husband simply for the sake of convenience," he said, "so that I could thus readily visit her in connection with business transactions."

Gerard Depreciates Intolerance in U. S.

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—James W. Gerard hopes that one of the major parties will nominate either a Catholic or a Jew for president.

Presiding at a meeting of the Jewish Tribune Forum last night, he said such a nomination would "do away with the miserable spirit of intolerance which has grown up in the land."

With the expression of his hopes the former democratic ambassador to Germany gave the following warning:

"When any one race goes to a political convention and demands recognition for one man because of this religion or that race, it is increasing intolerance."

Most of the Fengtien Manchurian troops in Shantung are natives of Shantung, and observers say it would not be surprising if the majority went over to Wu, as the whole population is said strongly to favor the alliance.

STEPHENSON'S GO TO PRISON, JURY DECIDES

Ex-dragon Plans Fight to Escape Life Sentence

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Determined to fight the life imprisonment sentence which a jury imposed on him for the death of Miss Madge Oberholzer, D. C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, spent today in his cell here conferring with lawyers and friends. Earl of Stephenson, who were charged jointly with the murder, were found not guilty.

It took a jury a little more than five hours to weigh the evidence presented in the court room over a period of two weeks. They found Stephenson guilty of second degree murder and set the penalty at life imprisonment, in Indiana, twenty years with time off for good behavior.

Wearing his old defiant smile Stephenson reiterated his now famous remark to newspaper men, "surrender! Hell," he shouted. "I have not yet begun to fight." The last chapter in this case has not been written.

It is planned by defense attorney Floyd Christian to move for a new trial when their client is brought into court next week to hear formal pronouncement of sentence. If this is denied the case will be appealed.

Miss Oberholzer died from the results of bichloride of mercury poisoning May 13. In a deathbed statement she charged that Stephenson, with the aid of Klenck and Gentry, had forced her to accompany him on a trip to Hammond, Ind. On the train, she said, Stephenson assaulted her. It was while she was in the hands of the captors and took the poison, the statement said. They returned to Indianapolis where Stephenson, the statement said, kept her prisoner in his garage overnight.

SAY McDOWELL'S RESIGNATION NO PART OF SCANDAL

Former Ogle County States Attorney was Mentioned Today

Chicago, Nov. 16.—(AP)—United States Attorney E. A. Olson today took personal charge of the beer inquiry and declared it ultimately would involve high city and county officials and politicians.

He declared emphatically that the resignation of James L. McDowell, formerly one of his assistants and previously state's Attorney of Ogle County had nothing to do with the inquiry.

Important developments by tomorrow were indicated by the district attorney who withheld further comment although it was understood the first phase of the investigation would bring a few indictments tomorrow.

Shipments of beer from breweries at Lawrence, Mass., five carloads of which were discovered by prohibition raiders at Morton Grove, Illinois, last September, led to the investigation.

NATIONAL C. OF C. ASKS CONGRESS TO SLASH MANY TAXES

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Offers Suggestions for Betterment

Washington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a letter to the committee made public today has asked the House Ways and Means Committee to cut taxes to the full extent possible from the treasury standpoint, devoting one half to reduction in income rates.

The chamber urged repeal of the estate and all excise taxes, a slash in the corporation levy, unneeded credit for earned incomes, and elimination of the publicity section. It also opposed increasing personal exemptions, and asked that the administrative machinery of the Bureau of Internal Revenue be decentralized to permit settlements of cases outside of Washington.

Other administrative changes favored by the Chamber were: Permanent organization of the board of tax appeals as an independent agency, payment of adequate salaries in the internal revenue bureau, publication of rulings of the treasury department affecting taxpayers, permission for tax payers to file tentative returns three months in advance of final returns, creation of commission to adjust all unsettled cases pending prior to June 2, 1924 and appointment of a commission to study means of simplifying the law.

Conference Title Cinched Tighter in Rock Falls Game

With only 60 seconds of playing time left "Bill" Johnson again saved the Dixon high school's chances for the championship of the Rock River Valley conference Saturday afternoon in the most sensational game that has ever been played on a local gridiron, when he booted the ball over the bar, thus defeating Rock Falls, last year's title holders by a 3 to 0 score. The Rock Falls slogan "Beat Dixon" failed to work in this, the hardest struggle of the 1925 football schedule. The visitors were supported by a large crowd of enthusiastic fans who accompanied them to the north side athletic field and saw their team go down in defeat for the first time this year.

The much feared passing game of Logan, Willett and Pignatelli was almost a complete failure. Logan's passing to Pignatelli, the iron man of the Rock Falls crew, was poor, the ball in almost every case striking the ground before reaching the player. Several of Logan's attempts to pass were intercepted and Dixon's aerial game far outshone that particular style of attack used by the visitors. It was a good, clean, but hard fought battle which was viewed by a crowd of about a thousand persons, the largest attendance at a game here this season. When the final whistle sounded, Johnson was carried off the field on the shoulders of Dixon high school students. It was the second time this fall that his toe has saved the day for Dixon with a place kick.

First Quarter.

Rock Falls kicked off to Dixon's 15 yard line. G. McNicol returning the oval to the 45 yard line before being downed. On a fumble Dixon lost the ball. Pignatelli made two attempts to gain ground through the line but was unsuccessful and Logan punted to Dixon's 15 yard line. McReynolds bringing the ball back to the 40 yard line. Dixon was unable to gain through Rock Falls line and G. McNicol punted to the visitor's 45 yard line, the ball going out of bounds. The visitors suffered a five yard penalty for off sides and on the next play Dixon received a like penalty. Rock Falls tried to batter a hole in Dixon's line and on four attempts made eight yards, the ball changing hands in the center of the field. McReynolds made six yards, through center and Rock Falls drew another five yard penalty for off side, making it the first down for Dixon. O'Malley tried to skirt right end but failed to gain and Johnson went back to the 45 yard line to place kick, but the Dixon line failed to hold and the visitors broke through and blocked the kick, taking the ball on the 45 yard line. Logan made two yards around right end and Dixon was penalized five yards for off side. Logan went through right tackle for 15 yards making it the first down for the visitors. The quarter closed with Dixon in possession of the ball on their own 25 yard line.

Second Quarter.

O'Malley advanced the ball two yards on a center attack and G. McNicol punted to the center of the field. Pignatelli was unable to gain ground (Continued on Page 5.)

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Grains Fall Off in Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 16.—(AP)—All though the whole wheat market showed an upward trend today at the outset, declines quickly ensued. Initial gains were ascribed largely to the fact that the amount of wheat on ocean passage had fallen off and that crop reports from Argentina were construed as bullish. On the advance, however, general commission house selling developed and despite indications that the sales were chiefly to realize profits, the market underwent a material setback. Opening quotations unchanged to higher, new style Dec. 1.57½; and May 1.50½@1.51, were followed by a drop of 1.55½ for Dec. and 1.49½ for May.

Announcement that the United States visible supply had increased only 132,000 bushels as against 3,453,000 bushels a year ago had some bullish influence. The effect failed to last and the market fell lower than before. Wheat closed weak ¼ to ¾ cent lower, Dec. 1.54½@1.55 and May 1.49½@1.50.

Corn advanced in sympathy with the action of wheat. After opening ¼@½ advance, Dec. 77½@78, the market receded all around to below Saturday's finish.

In later transactions Dec. corn showed relative strength. Country offerings were small. Corn closed irregular ¼ cent net lower to ½ advance, Dec. 77½.

Oats started unchanged to ¼ cent higher, Dec. 35½. Later all months showed a slight loss.

Provisions were firmer.

Wall Street Review

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Initial price changes in the stock market today were narrow and conflicting. Trading generally presented the same characteristics which prevailed at the close of last week with buying supporting the market for the rails while profit taking proceeded in the high priced motors and specialties. U. S. Steel, American Can, Dupont and General Motors opened slightly lower. Sustained buying of rails, based on estimates that October earnings would eclipse the monthly record established in Sept. contrasted with short selling and realizing in other sections of the list throughout the early dealings. Among industrials, this maintained the best tone. Stocks in the Nickel Plate combination advanced under the leadership of Chesapeake & Ohio, and early gains were registered by Canadian Pacific and B. & O. Outpost was heavy. Chrysler reacted almost five points and losses of 1 to 2½ points included Mack Trucks, Jordan and Allied Chemical. Foundation Company's foreign rights opened at 16 and advanced to 19. Foreign exchanges were firm with demand sterling quoted at 4.84½.

Extensive selling of motors caused the whole market to decline. Chrysler broke 123½. Hudson fell 6½ and Mack Trucks, Jordan and Fisher body 3 to 4½. A number of other specialties and railway gave way 4 points or so with U. S. Steel Iron Pipe losing 4½; General Electric 5 and Dupont 11 points. Subsequent heavy accumulation of American Can, Missouri Pacific and Schulte started a vigorous rally. Hudson, Chrysler, Dupont and General Electric moved up 5 to 7 points from the low figures. Nickel Plate sold ex dividend at 164, a gain of 8½ and the record price. Call loans renewed at 4½ per cent.

New York Elks Have Padlock on the Bar

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Elks Club of New York today accepted a "padlock" for six months closing the situation which had grown out of proceedings instituted by U. S. Attorney Buckner under the prohibition laws.

For the next half year, the grill room and bar of the club will be locked and sealed. Mr. Buckner explained that where restaurants were incidentally connected with living quarters, only the former were closed.

New York Exchange Seat Worth $150,000

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The refusal of New York Stock Exchange brokers to permit an expansion of membership today sent the price of seats soaring to a record height. Exchange officials admitted that the sale of a membership had been arranged for $150,000 which compares with the previous record of $135,000.

A proposal of the board of governors to sell 25 new seats at prices ranging from $135,000 to $145,000 was overwhelmingly defeated by the membership last week.

Kinley Says Student Searches for Truth

Chicago, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The college man or woman of the present is not superficial or frivolous. Dr. David Kinley, president of the University of Illinois, told the congressionalist ministers of Chicago today.

True, he said, "they are not interested in dogmatic authority but they are interested in truth. What they want is a reconciliation of the old beliefs and the new discoveries."

He added that although by law religion cannot be taught the various religious denominations have established themselves near the University and have done splendid work.

LONDON PLEASANT AT GERMAN AID IN THE SEARCH FOR U-BOAT

Unique German Apparatus to be Used by Deep Sea Divers

London, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The people of London feel that there is something quaint in having German deep sea divers aid in the attempts to locate the British monitor submarine M-1 which last week in the English channel made a dive with 68 officers and men on board and failed to come to the surface.

Whether it is a business proposition on the part of the Germans or voluntary service, is not quite clear, but some persons prefer to regard it as "a striking act of humanity and worthy of being considered the first fruits of the Locarno pact."

The newspapers today are filled with descriptions and pictures of the wonderful apparatus of which the Germans are the sole possessors. The machine weighs half a ton and is equipped with an electric light and a telephone. The area, some 12 miles off Start Point where oil rose to the surface of the water on Saturday, seemingly indicating the probable location of the submarine, has been marked by buoys and it is here that the attempts to find the ship will be made.

Naval officers say they will not be surprised if the Germans locate one or more of their own submarines sunk by the British in the neighborhood where the M-1 went down, after they had taken toll of British shipping.

The others were: Jerry's Tavern, near Elgin, operated by F. J. Bender. Saloon operated by John Kuk and Ray Angell, North Aurora.

Hollywood Inn, south of Elgin, operated by William H. Howell. Shirley Boat Livery, outside Elgin, operated by Manley Harris.

THOSE TWO-DOLLAR BILLS—

By Edgar A. Guest.
They tell me that you bring bad luck,
Oh, lovely, green two-dollar bill!
By terror grim the tradesmen struck
To see you resting in the till.
The taxi driver mutters low:
"Mister, I cannot change that thing.
Ain't you got other kinds of dough?
Bad luck those two spots always bring."

There are some superstitions I believe in and observe with care,
I won't in August or July,
Put on my heavy underwear;
I know 'twill bring bad luck to race
A railroad train express or freight,
At crossings I reduce my pace,
Fearful of tragedy—I wait!

I never play with loaded guns,
Bad luck that way is often born,
I have a coward's fear which shuns
Depending on my motor horn;
I am afraid I could not meet
Some unexpected circumstance,
And when I brave a busy street
I never take a foolish chance.

Bad luck I fear and always will,
Some evil things I dread, and yet
Oh, lovely green two-dollar bill,
I'll take you in without regret;
To you my palm is never shut,
I smile your pretty face to see,
I have my superstitions, but
Two-dollar bills don't frighten me.

Dixon Woman's Club Meeting

(Contributed by the Press Correspondent.)

The Dixon Woman's Club held its regular meeting Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14th, at the Christian church.
After a short business meeting, Mrs. Clyda Kaylor took charge, introducing the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Frederick A. Dow, of Hinsdale, Ill.
Mrs. Dow served as state president in 1913 and 1914. A very interesting address was given on the Democracy of Early American Literature, and those who were unable to be present missed a treat.

"Literature lifts the soul and makes one better," and it is "for the people, by the people and of the people."
Early American literature began about the time of the Jamestown settlement, 1607.

Taking up the literature at the period she carried her audience up to the present time, showing its gradual development and progress, and that the early literature was due to the manner of the people living ahead of their time and it helped make our American history. She took up the different ages of literature, different writers at each period. Some of the earliest writers were Bradstreet, Cotton Mather, Patrick Henry, Benjamin Franklin and some of the late periods will mention a few. She touched on the lives of Bryan Emmerson, the brilliant genius of poet Riley the Hoosier poet, Mark Twain, the humorist, Lincoln, of the famous Gettysburg address, Whittier, Lowell and America's favorite poet, Longfellow.

Mrs. Dow kept the attention of her audience from beginning to end and those that heard her felt well repaid. At the close of this excellent address, one could not help but feel that America was God's Greatest Opportunity.

The next meeting of the Dixon Woman's Club will be Nov. 23, and will be on Art, an address to be given by Miss Lucy Hartrath of Chicago. This is to be a great day.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Baked pears, cereal, thin cream, fried cornmeal mush, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Vegetable soup, croutons, rice and date pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Baked haddock, scalloped potatoes, buttered brussels, sprouts, endive salad, whole wheat bread, fried apple pie, milk, coffee.

The vegetable soup suggested in the luncheon menu should be made with a meat stock. The vegetables are cooked separately in as little water as possible and added with any water clinging to them to the strained stock or they may be cooked in the stock. Cut the vegetables into small cubes and use them for "filling" as well as for flavoring the soup.

Rice and Date Pudding.
One cup boiled rice, 12 dates, two eggs, ½ cup sugar, 1½ cups milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Remove stones from dates. Beat eggs until light. Beat in sugar, salt and milk. Add rice, dates and vanilla and stir until thoroughly mixed. Pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold with or without cream.
This is a simple nourishing pudding excellent for children or grown persons. If served very cold with whipped cream it makes an impromptu company dessert.

Prairieville Social Circle Meeting

Everything conspired to make Wednesday, Nov. 11, a perfect day of enjoyment when Mrs. Jessie Sivets entertained the Prairieville Social Circle at her lovely country home. Potted plants and sunshine, that much prized article, made the rooms most cheerful.

Fifty-four members, guests and children were present to enjoy the feast of good things at the dinner hour. Snatches of Armistice Day programs over the radio enlivened the day.
The singing of several patriotic songs opened the business meeting. The name of one new member was presented and voted upon. Anyone having "out grown" children's clothing in any size up to 12 years should bring it to the next meeting, as it will be for the use of some needy families.
In order to avoid Thanksgiving week the next meeting will be held in three weeks on Dec. 2. Mrs. William Ruska will be hostess at that time.

Much Praise Heard for Annual Dinner

Much praise was heard and it was well merited, for the annual chicken dinner and supper, served by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Lutheran church Saturday.
These dinners grow from year to year and from 11 to 1 o'clock there was a steady stream of patrons to St. Paul's church and the attendance started at 5 for the supper and everyone attending reported a splendid repast. The ladies also sold some rugs and quilts and some fancy work, but their annual Christmas bazaar or sale will be held in Ferguson's Hardware store Friday and Saturday, the 20th and 21st of November. At this time there will be on sale much beautiful needlework, the articles making ideal Christmas gifts.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

One of the newest ways of treating nervous and mental patients is by the "confession cure."

You write your thoughts and your acts on paper, particularly the ones that irritate you or cause you to explode in wrath or tears.

You give your doctor a careful record of what is going on in your mind and sketch the events in your past life that have affected you most strongly and from that he unravels complexes and sorts out mental quirks, and before long you are no longer in the nervous wreck class.

A friend of mine who is sufficiently prosperous to take treatments from a very expensive nerve specialist, is going through this very course of treatment.

She gets no medicine and no fancy diets. She merely submits her mental chart. She is practically taking an inventory of what is in her consciousness and when it is all tabulated, she will be taught what to discard and how to get back on an efficient basis.

are really suffering from badly confused minds. We don't need to be anywhere near a nervous breakdown to get benefit from the confession cure.

If, for instance, we write out all the things we do daily, we will be surprised to find out how little we do or participate in that really amount to much.

If we chronicle carefully our slights and irritations and the occasions of our outbursts of wrath or of affection, we will get at our real selves and gain a valuable perspective.

If we write down our side of a quarrel, and the arguments we advanced to gain the victory, we will probably be greatly surprised to find out how much less noble and convincing it is on paper than it was verbally. It is fine, splendid training just trying to get our thoughts accurately in words. Paper shows up weaknesses that smiles, soft voices, and tricks of manner cloak.

Sometimes we will be perfectly sure of something, but we can't express it on paper. That should warn we haven't as much substance as we should have—that some essential is missing.

All of us get muddled because we don't keep our minds cleared and sorted as we go. And soon we get into a condition where we can't find what we want, and where everything is confusion just as we do in a room where things are allowed to accumulate in a helter skelter fashion.

Most of the misunderstandings, quarrels, estrangements and general causes of friction among human beings have a very slight actual foundation but they become magnified and distorted in our minds because we have no perspective on them. Writing down the facts in the case clears up the situation almost immediately. By keeping a record of our thoughts we can have an excellent idea about what to weed out and just why we fall in our human relationships. The confession cure will help us all to get acquainted with the person we probably know the least—ourselves.

NEWS FROM DIXON

H-I-Y SUPPER

The local branch of the H-I-Y Club is having a special meeting and supper tomorrow evening at the Y. M. C. A. when the initiation ceremony and induction service will be held for the new members that were recently voted into membership in the Club. All new members, both last year's and this year's, who have not been initiated will meet at the "Y" as soon after 6:00 o'clock as possible. The ceremony is a real affair and it is expected that every member will be present so that he will not have to go through later by himself. Following the supper, the induction service will be held by the team of older members in charge of it. This will be followed by an address by Dr. K. B. Begner who will use the black board in giving his address for young men on "Sex Education."

Dixon Will Lead.

Fully twenty-five older boys have requested that they be given an opportunity to attend the State Older Boys' Conference, at Champaign-Urbana, November 27, 28 and 29th. Only thirteen boys and two leaders are permitted to attend however, as this is the quota that has been given to Dixon. Only 1200 boys can be accommodated and it is a matter of choosing the best possible material rather than letting whoever wishes attend the Convention.

The Convention this year will be held in the University Buildings and delegates will be entertained in the better homes in the two cities. It is worthy of mention that Dixon will this year lead the monster parade at the Convention. This is indeed a great honor for Dixon and the local boys are preparing to make it an outstanding feature by making special banners.

Among the speakers is E. C. Wolcott, prominent business man of Kansas City, Missouri, who has an enviable record as a compelling speaker to thousands of older boys; Dr. J. C. Baker, head of the Wesleyan Foundation at the University of Illinois; Dr. Baker is one of the strongest speakers in his church to younger men; Rev. Roland Schloerb, who is pastor of the First Evangelical church at Naperville; Mr. Schloerb is one of the younger prophetic voices in the ministry. M. T. Kennedy, a member of the staff of the University of Illinois, who has just returned from twelve years' service in India. Other speakers include A. A. Henry, a LaGrange business man, J. O. Pierrell, of the State Committee Y. M. C. A., J. H. Hauberg, a prominent attorney, C. G. Moser of Evanston, Lew Webb and L. G. Bowen of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. Locally, the thirteen delegates have been divided among the city churches by the Conference Club.

ITALY'S SETTLEMENT.

Italy, according to agreement between the commissioners at Washington, is to pay the principal of her debt to the United States, $1,648,000,000, in full. But the interest is to be computed at a very low rate, beginning at one-eighth of 1 percent, and mounting by stages till in the final years it is to be 2 per cent. This is a big concession by the United States, which is paying 4 1/4 percent to Liberty bond holders from whom came the money that was lent to Italy. But the low interest is based on "Italy's ability to pay." Italy is conceded to be nearer to bankruptcy than any other European country to which United States loaned money. The interest to be charged Italy will net $759,000,000, bringing her total payments to this country in the sixty-two year period to $2,407,000,000. This settlement should have congressional approval, as it probably will have, as the people of this country do not desire to exact the pound of flesh from those countries which suffered in the war more terribly than the United States, whose original sympathy with them was manifested when we rushed to arms in their behalf. Here is additional incentive for France to settle, or to suffer still more economically.

A SAVING COMPROMISE.

There was no verdict in the Blazer human husk case in Colorado. The jury, after several ballots, stood 11 to 1 for acquittal. The prosecuting attorney, who seems to have had information of this stand, advised the court to call the jury in and to dismiss it, as an acquittal was imminent. An acquittal would have been popular with the community. But the judge took the attorney's advice and discharged the jury, thus avoiding an acquittal which would have been a grievous result of the trial, as it would have stood as a precedent for similar cases all over the country. Indeed it would have been used as a precedent in cases where the killer was sanely deliberate, as it is believed he was not in this case, but temporarily insane after thirty-two years of the burden of the care of his ill-formed imbecile daughter.

Of course, there having been no verdict Dr. Blazer can be tried again, but the court indicated that another trial would be akin to persecution of the doctor. The prosecuting attorney, who had done his best to convict, is averse to another trial, which indeed would be useless considering the sentiment of the community at and around Littleton. Dismissal of the case is a saving compromise.

MORE CITY MANAGERS.

Rochester, N. Y., has just voted to establish the manager form of government. It will have a council of nine members, one from each of four districts and five at large. There will be a short ballot and non-partisan elections.

Kansas City and Cincinnati are putting in their first new councils under city manager charters.

It can not be too often repeated that merely changing a charter and getting a new form of government, no matter how desirable its theory may appear, will not produce clean and competent city government. An enlightened and active population can get good government no matter what it tries.

Still, there must be a reason for the growing popularity of the city manager plan. We suspect there are two reasons. One is that it is really a good plan. The other is that it takes a certain amount of enlightenment and activity on the part of the population to make so radical a change in governmental form, and some of this activity and enlightenment holds over and supports the manager.

BOLSHEVISM'S AMBITION.

Every one in this country knows that a chief aim of the bolsheviks of Russia is to wipe out the Christian church and destroy religion altogether. Edgar E. Strother, general secretary of the China Christian Endeavor Union, writes from Shanghai that the key to the bolshevik movement is best revealed in a cartoon as issued on the first page of an organ of the bolsheviks. It portrayed a Russian workman, with sleeves rolled up and holding a huge hammer. He was shown at the foot of a ladder which he was about to ascend, and below was printed, "I have already smashed our earthly thrones: I am going up to shatter the throne of God."

The Turkish republican government has ruled that every Turk must wear a European hat or go bareheaded. So the fez is outlawed, and Turkish police stand uninterested when a fez is torn off a wearer. It couldn't be worse in this country if congress ruled that every man should wear knee-pants or go bare-legged. Even republics overseas can't seem to break away from monarchical tyranny.

American business men are much more welcome in Germany today than Yank doughboys were some seven years ago.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 1—IN THE PICTURE GALLERY

The picture galleries were miles long, it seemed to the children.

One day the Twins went with their mother to the city to get some winter clothes.

Nick got a dark blue serge suit, some new white collars, and some very nice shirts. Also a lumber-jack plaid sweater coat, and a dark gray overcoat and cap to match.

Nancy got a dark blue jersey dress to be worn with plain white collars and cuffs, a green slicker, a tan wool sweater, and a brown felt hat with a silk rosette on the side.

Besides that they got new shoes and heavy ribbed stockings and gloves and other things.

With so much trying on and looking and going from one store to another they got pretty tired.

"Perhaps they weren't glad when lunch time came and their mother took them to a tea-room all decorated in yellow leaves, and yellow silk curtains and yellow light shades!"

But the smells were even better than the looks, and the food was still better than the smells. Mrs. Walton said they ate enough for coal-heavers, so it must be that buying new clothes is as hard work as heaving coal. But then, she may not have meant it exactly.

After lunch Nick said, "Mother, mayn't we go to the movies this afternoon?"

But Mrs. Walton shook her head. "No dear! We are going to the International Exhibit."

"The what?" cried the Twins together in dismay. It certainly sounded dreadful.

Mrs. Walton laughed. "Oh, it isn't so bad as all that," she said. "The International Exhibit is a picture gallery. Some of the finest pictures in the world have been brought to brane of the lung, or as we say, an inflammation of the pleura—the pleura being to the lung what the skin is to the body, namely, its covering.

Another complication which may take place in pneumonia is an extension of the inflammation to the lining membranes of the heart. Now the heart is lined, both inside and out—on the outside, there is a double lining just as in the lung—on the inside, a single lining.

When inflammation occurs in the double outer lining of the heart, we call it pericarditis—peri meaning around. If it is the inner lining of the heart we call it an endocarditis, though this latter complication is rare in pneumonia; it is very often present in rheumatism. In inflammation of the double layers of the outside lining of the heart, there may be a distension of the space between these layers with a fluid as in pleurisy—this condition is spoken of as a pericardial effusion.

Another very serious, but fortunately very rare complication of pneumonia is an extension of the inflammation to the coverings or membranes which line the surfaces of the brain and spinal cord—a condition we speak of as meningitis. Meningitis can occur, of course, without there being a pneumonia, often does in fact, but pneumonia with meningitis as a complication is nearly always fatal.

The treatment of pneumonia calls for the services of a skilled physician. The fever in pneumonia lasts from six to ten days, usually about nine days. The temperature may drop suddenly on the ninth day (or some other day) and the patient may begin at once to grow better or the change from worse to better may be more gradual. There may be relapses, or complications may set in even at this stage but usually when this so-called crisis is reached, uninterrupted recovery follows.

GILBERT N. GUNDERSON, ADVERTISING DIRECTOR OF THE NEW YORK TELEGRAM, SAYS: THAT advertising is one of the most powerful forces in modern American life.

THAT without it you would probably eat very different foods from what you now do—live in a different kind of house—wear different kinds of clothes.

THAT advertising has made it possible for you to have oranges from California and Florida, flour from Minneapolis, St. Louis or Kansas City, coffee from Brazil, sugar from Cuba, shoes and textiles from New England, silks from Japan and necessities from every other part of the world.

THAT advertising has made it possible to buy these articles cheaply by increasing their sale, thereby increasing the quantities produced and lowering the costs of production and distribution.

THAT everywhere you turn you will see advertised articles, which, because of advertising, are high in quality, reliable and desirable.

THAT without advertising your life would not be nearly as it is at present. ADVERTISING CAN AND WILL BE A POWERFUL FORCE FOR GOOD IN AMERICA, FOR THE MEN WHO DO ADVERTISING HAVE LEARNED THAT IT IS A FORCE WHICH MUST BE CAREFULLY GUARDED FOR THE GOOD OF THE PEOPLE

THAT tremendous savings are made by thrifty buyers who read the ads and shop where the best buys are to be found.

THAT the advertisements show the unrivaled ability of the stores that advertise to give their customers desirable and worthy merchandise at prices that satisfy.

THAT when you buy from the stores that are persistent advertisers you take no chance.

THAT the people who do not read the advertisements do not know what is going on; they do not realize what a mistake they are making.

THAT they live their lives, but overlook the fact that they could live a whole lot better if they read the ads. Reading the ads would show them where they could buy more for less.

THAT real economy in purchasing merchandise is not the original price paid, but the good buy is where a fair price is paid for a good article which will give good service.

THAT merchants who advertise persistently must sell goods to the same people month after month. Their merchandise must be good and their advertising truthful or their reputation for square dealing, likewise their business would go to the "bow-wows."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO HANNAH SMITH

My Dear Hannah,

I left in such a hurry the other day that I forgot to tell you that probably Miss Paula Perier will be in Pittsburgh. I had hoped to be there at that time but if I have not returned, I want you to make her perfectly welcome in my house. She's a very old friend of Mr. Prescott's and a newer but dear friend of mine, and I am very much put out to think that Mrs. Burke needs me just at this time.

If possible, I hope you will keep Mr. Prescott's mother away from Miss Perier when she comes to see the children—as she surely will. Miss Perier is very fond of children and she made little Jack a most fabulous present when she came the first time and saw him. I'm sure she will be quite as delighted with Buddy.

I want, if possible, that she shall be left absolutely alone with the children, when she comes to see them. I rely on your kindness and good sense, Hannah, about this. I am very well aware that if Mr. Prescott's mother knows that I have asked you to make these arrangements for Miss Perier, she will in some way manage to spoil the entire visit. Mr. Prescott's mother does not like the moving picture actress at all and that is why I do not want her to know when she makes her call.

Now, Hannah, I want you to be careful to keep all I have written you to yourself. Of course, I hope to get home before Miss Perier completes her picture which is to be filmed, as you know, at Mr. Prescott's steel plant. I am however, writing this so that you may take my place in making Miss Perier quite at home in my house, especially in the nursery.

Mr. Prescott promised me before I left that he would try to get his mother to make a visit somewhere while I was gone, but you know how queer she is. She will probably think that it is necessary for her to stay at her son's house, while his wife is away. Whatever she does—except to interfere with the children—be sure and keep the peace with her and write me often, so that I know how things are going.

I know, my dear Hannah, that for my sake you will do what I have asked you, no matter how hard it may be for you, for you have always justified my faith in you.

Most sincerely,
LESLIE HAMILTON PRESCOTT.

SYNOPSIS
Connemara Moore is aboard a yacht in Long Island Sound in company with one Pooch, an utter stranger. It is after midnight. Suddenly they find their craft is being pursued by "revenue cutters." Connemara is expected to announce her engagement tonight but, instead, garbed as a nun, she stole away from Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home. She accepted a ride from David Lacy, a stranger, crossed the Sound with him on a ferry, and, after driving across Long Island and boarding the yacht, here she is.

"What the hell kind of game is this?" he demanded finally.

"What do you mean?" asked Connemara. "It's no game to me, I assure you."

"Don't get gay with me," Mr. Pooch snapped. "Didn't get a good look at you before in that rig—you ain't Sweetie."

"No, I certainly am not," Connemara admitted. "I—I think there's been some mix-up—"

"Mix-up! And you putting it over on me!" Mr. Pooch exclaimed furiously. Then suddenly he was towering above her. "Come across with that dough!" he commanded.

His right hand was raised—with his left he reached for Connemara's throat.

"McTish! McTish!" She just had time to shriek as Mr. Pooch's fingers closed around her windpipe.

CHAPTER VII

Wootly Parker.

By Dorothy Parker

Mr. David Lacy, of New York, Paris, London, Venice, Petrograd,

"McTish! McTish!" She just had time to shriek.

Monte Carlo, Palm Beach, and sometimes w y, was not in the full enjoyment of that pool-like placidity of mind which usually characterized him. Indeed, he was aware of a distinct and curiously unpleasant sensation of mental unrest. There were ladies, in various sections of the world, who would have been ingeniously delighted by the news of this condition. In vain had they tried, individually, to bring him to it.

In the first place—and in most of the other places—there were his thoughts on Sister Connemara.

"Sister!" he said bitterly to himself as he stumbled along the ditch in which he gathered to be her wake. "Swell Sister she is."

The comment pleased him, so low was his mental state. He repeated it, though inaudibly, several times. He even went into the matter on a larger scale, and thought, grimly, that she was never going to have any chance at the old but ever popular role of being a sister to him. But he ran right on, along the ditch.

It now seemed to Mr. Lacy that, from the first moment of their meeting, he had grasped that Connemara was no real nun. He felt that he deserved a good, heaping measure of credit for his discernment.

"Thought she fooled me, did she?" he asked himself. He felt it would be not at all unpleasing to explain to the lady, in somewhat full detail, how strikingly little had been his belief in her vocation.

Now, of course, to have a young and low-voiced lady, disturbingly fragrant of mimosa, turn out not to be a nun at all is one thing. It opens up a wide field, gives birth to a series of pleasant plans for the future, and induces a healthy glow of anticipation. But, shortly after this discovery, to become a firm believer in the theory that the same young lady is one of the principal figures in a band of desperadoes, is distinctly something else again. Perhaps she was the Master Mind of the gang; possibly she had worked up to her present fifty-thousand-dollar job by way of a long apprenticeship in holding up cigar stores; maybe her photograph had been displayed in the papers as one of the mighty sisterhood of bobbed-hair bandits. It was a good thing, Mr. Lacy explained to himself, that he had found her out in time. There's no use trying to do anything for those people; they simply drop right back into their old ways again. The best thing to do is leave them alone; sooner or later they are bound to get theirs.

Yet he ran on along the ditch. And then there was his car, tossed aside like a withered violet in the dust of the road behind him. It would require an experienced worker in mosaic ever to put it together again. The thought further depressed Mr. Lacy. It was not that he did not know where his next Isotta was coming from. It was not the money so much as the principle of the thing. Aside from a justifiable pride in the manner in which the car had come to be his, David had a deep fondness for it. He grieved for the sudden breaking-off of a beautiful relationship.

Still David ran on, into the darkness that had swallowed Connemara and Pooch so greedily. He loved the outdoors and couldn't get on without his exercise, yet the thing was beginning to pall. The sky had clouded thickly; the trees, whispering darkly together like old wives in a sick room, tossed their boughs and showed the under sides of their leaves. Winds sprang up, it seemed to David, from all directions, and not far off, thunder growled savagely. In his ears sounded the complaining of troubled waters. That must be the Sound, somewhere ahead. Well—perhaps the steep-cliff would end there.

From behind him, hoarse shoutings punctuated his journey. Backward glances showed him a flash-light, careening like a drunken firefly, as its bearer stumbled along the ditch. The mysterious strangers from the Pierce were evidently going right on through with the thing. Their words were indistinguishable, but their tones indicated that they were calling upon David to stop. Yet, though well brought up, he paid not the slightest attention to the remarks that they addressed to him.

There was a report, from behind, and something whistled shrilly entirely too close to his ear for any real comfort.

"The party," murmured David, "is getting rough."

And so was the ditch. David, quickening his speed, came suddenly into close personal contact with the stump of a tree that had apparently died in agony. Simultaneously, he was struck in the head by a blow, he went headlong among its twisted roots, rolled from them, over and over in the slippery dead leaves of the ditch. With but a few brief words of hasty criticism of the dead tree, David picked himself up, found a footing, and started again on his travels. Again there was a report, decidedly closer this time. Again the screeching whistle troubled his ear.

"Hey, stop, will ya?" bellowed the voice back of him. It added a few words having to do with its owner's wishes for David's future.

"Well," David told himself, "we might as well get this over with." And he stopped and turned to face his pursuers, wearing an expression of courteous surprise.

They came up to him, the first one, who carried the flashlight, swearing glibly but without inspiration. The light revealed him as a heavy, dark man, with more than his legitimate quota of unshaven jaw. He wore badly assembled garments, and affected a lavishly plaided cap. Of the second figure, David could distinguish nothing more personal than that it was considerably shorter than the first.

David watched the light glint along the shining surface of the first man's revolver. The evening's events had taken on the quality of a prolonged dream. He had the curious lack of amazement with which one meets all the outrageous new occurrences of a nightmare.

"Doubtless," he mused, "this stout lad will turn out to be O'Malley of the Royal Mounted."

SCORELESS TIE AT BROWN FIELD GAME DIXON YESTERDAY

Dixon Legion and Ottawa Team Staged Fine Contest for Fans

The Illinois Traction company's football team held the Dixon Legion to a scoreless tie at the Brown Field yesterday afternoon and proved themselves to be a hard aggregation to be defeated. However, Manager W. F. Fisher at the close of the game made the statement that the Dixon Legion was the strongest team his men had confronted this season and was perfectly satisfied with the results. The Ottawa team has played nine games this season, winning five, tying two and losing two, Sunday's contest making the third tie.

In the opening quarter, Coach Dee's crew fairly played the visitors off their feet and for the first 15 minutes it looked like a walk away for Dixon. The Ottawa line was penetrated at almost every point and seemed to be full of holes, but this lasted but a short time. The visitors took a strong stand in the second quarter and after a short conference, turned the tables and began tearing holes in the Dixon line for long gains. Likewise they were ripping through the line and stopping plays in the backfield before the ball could be snapped. It was a quick and unexpected reversal of form and was maintained until the finish of the contest.

The visiting team is composed of former college and high school stars and have a forceful aggregation. Three of the stars were unable to be here for yesterday's battle and to their absence was attributed the scoreless tie.

Ottawa kicked off to Dixon and from the start, the local Legion had no difficulty in ripping through the Traction line for long gains and skirting the ends as well. Vaughan started the ball rolling with a 15 yard dash through center and Hudson followed with 18 more around right end just after the kick off. Wimpelberg drew a 15 yard penalty for holding at this point on the next play, Ottawa drew a like sentence for tackling a passer. Dixon worked the ball down to within 20 yards of their opponents goal. Coach Dee recovered a blocked punt at this stage, the ball being only 12 yards from the enemy's goal, where it was held and changed hands.

Ottawa strengthened from this stage and fought hard for the remainder of the afternoon, losing several men by the injury route and showing signs of weakness for brief periods only until the end of the contest. Hudson was tried out on passes several times but could not hold the ball and in the final quarter was replaced by Funderberg who finished the game. Sheriff Risley was in uniform for the first time yesterday and played the second half of the game at left tackle.

The line ups:

Dixon Legion—Whipple, re; Moore, re; Schofield, rg; Dee, c; Whitcomb, lg; Kiehl, rt; Wimpelberg, qb; Dawson, rt; Hartwell, qb; Hartwell, rt; Funderberg, rb; Vaughan, lb; Hudson, lb; Funderberg, lb.

Ottawa T. C.—Ryan, re; Swanson, rt; Klesner, rg; Daugherty, c; Sharp, lg; Kosonitz, lt; Harmon, lb; Jones, lb; Crawford, qb; Prendergast, rb; Geiger, lb.

Officials—Robb, Princeton, referee; Gorham, Dixon, umpire; Rosbrook, Dixon, head linesman.

LITTLE BROWN JUG GUAGE OF BATTLE AT SATURDAY GAME

Wolverines and Gophers Will Fight for Possession of the Prize

Chicago, Nov. 16—(AP)—A little brown jug, the bone of contention between Michigan and Minnesota since 1902, is the gauge of battle in this week's meeting of the teams, which ends the Western Conference campaign and may decide the title holder.

Originally only a lowly water container, the little brown jug is a symbol of victory for the Wolverines and Gophers. On its sides painted in the colors of the schools, are the records of eight games, seven of them Wolverine victories.

In 1903 Coach Yost took a Michigan team to Minnesota to end a most successful season. The game was a 6-6 tie.

After it was over, Michigan missed one of its water jugs. It was found broken. Harry Williams, then Gopher coach, agreed to replace it but required that Michigan prove its ownership by winning the title.

Not until 1909 did the teams meet. Then Michigan won 15-0 and the jug went back to Ann Arbor. It has been there since except in 1919 when Minnesota by a 34-7 score, acquired it and took it back to Minneapolis.

Greater interest attaches to the little brown jug this year for fate and circumstances had made it virtually symbolic of the Big Ten championship. Minnesota is undefeated in the conference and leads the race for the title with Michigan second with one defeat and four victories.

The game is the 16th meeting of the teams since 1902.

An ancient superstition persists that if garlic is planted near roses the roses will have a richer fragrance.

Undefeated Gophers Place All Hopes on Next Saturday's Game

Chicago, Nov. 16—(AP)—The Western Conference title mixup partly clarified by Minnesota's victory over Iowa, the leading Gophers this week hope to make their championship claim good by defeating Michigan in the outstanding game of the Big Ten season windups.

This is a week of last appearances for teams and stars. Red Grange, Illinois' untamed terror drops out of the collegiate football picture in the game with Ohio State in Columbus. Eight Michigan men including Captain Howard and Edwards, play their last against the Gophers.

Minnesota must win from Michigan to merit the Big Ten crown as the only undefeated team. Should Michigan win, Northwestern would claim a tie, for it defeated the Wolverines even though the Yostmen would have five victories to the Purple's three. Northwestern's conference schedule is ended.

Chicago Pays Wisconsin

While the Wolverines and Gophers ready themselves for their title tilt, Chicago and Wisconsin groom for a scramble for second place honors. Both have won two, lost one and tied one in the conference. The Maroons last year's champions, are getting set to wipe out victory the failure of its inter-sectional games at Dartmouth on Saturday last and Pennsylvania earlier in the season.

Grange and his Illinois have the edge over the Buckeyes, but Illinois-Ohio football history is famous for its upsets.

The red haired leader did not play in last year's game because of injuries, but in 1923 he got away for long gains, one of them 25 yards and a touchdown.

State honors are involved in the annual meeting of Indiana and Purdue at Bloomington. For that matter also place honors in the Big Ten also are at stake. Neither team has won a conference start though both have made excellent showings against strong opponents in and out of the Big Ten.

Northeastern ends its season against Notre Dame at South Bend. Ralph (Moon) Baker is in top form for the game which the Purple hopes to make a sequel to last year's game in Chicago, when Baker's two touchdowns nearly snatched a national title from Rockne's cavalry. Notre Dame is in 1924 form as shown by its four touchdown victory over Carnegie Tech.

Iowa to California

Iowa's moosekies are packed for its long trek to Los Angeles to meet Southern California. The Hawkeyes' record is marred by losses to Wisconsin and Minnesota, but it is considered a representative eleven from the mid-west and interest follows its travels.

PHILLY GETS SIX NATIONAL EVENTS FROM A. A. U. UNION

Athletic Union Awards Various Championship Events of 1926

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 16—(AP)—Athletically speaking, the Sesqui-Centennial of Philadelphia is a success, thanks to the executive committee of the American Amateur Athletic Union which in the opening sessions of the annual convention awarded six national championship events to the Quaker city.

A delegation of 12 men from the middle Atlantic association, chiefly from Philadelphia and headed by Lawson Robertson, coach of the United States Olympic team, stormed the convention yesterday and came out with practically everything they had requested.

The flower of the championships, the national senior outdoor championships in track and field, will be held at the centennial stadium the last week in June and just prior to that the junior honors in the same events will be decided.

Rounding off this stellar event is the national senior outdoor swimming championships for both men and women, the junior cross country championships and the junior boxing championships.

Just to fall in line, representatives of the largest railroads in the country conferred with President Murray Hulbert and agreed to form a national organization to include the athletic association of the railroads. A meet will be held similar to that of the A. A. U. and will be under the jurisdiction of the Amateur body.

The association selected Philadelphia as the place for its first track and field meet. It too will be held in connection with the exposition.

In awarding the men's national senior indoor championship in both track and field and swimming, the A. A. U. did much to bridge a gap that had existed between the Illinois Athletic Club and the Chicago A. A. For the last ten years, Officials of the two clubs stated they have buried the hatchet and will join in the handling of the games. The swimming events will take four evenings and will be evenly divided between the two clubs.

The 16 mile national championship went to St. Louis and the national senior cross country championship to New York.

Florida Gets Contest

Florida came in for its share of honors and the national senior indoor swimming championships for women will be held at St. Augustine, where it was staged last year.

New York will entertain the women athletes at the national senior indoor women's championships.

The records committee at the last minute met with some opposition, the Illinois A. C. protesting the records claimed by the Yale University relay team for the 200 and 500 yard events.

Charles Dittm, a past president of the A. A. U., and associated with the Illinois Athletic Club, stated that no affidavits were forthcoming from the touch off judges and that flying starts were permitted. An Illinois A. C. relay team holds the records that Yale reports it broke.

Selection of a city for the next convention has the executive committee puzzled. Baltimore, Niagara Falls, New Orleans and Milwaukee, Wis., making bids for the 1926 conference. The convention today is expected to take definite action on records, place of next convention and nomination of officers.

CROSS COUNTRY RUN

Chicago, Nov. 16—(AP)—Chicago and Purdue are the only Western conference institutions not represented on the list of entries for the annual Big Ten cross country run to be held over a five mile course at the University of Michigan next Saturday. Notre Dame, Marquette and Michigan State are non-conference schools entered.

The winner will be given one point, second place two and so on until the entire field finishes. The team having the lowest total will be declared the winner.

Babies Sold for $40

Charges that babies could be bought in Cincinnati for prices ranging from $25 to $100 were made by Mrs. Helen Samuels, 22, when her husband sued for divorce. She declared she had bought each of her children, known as Earl Ward (left) and Tommy Samuels (right) from a Kentucky woman who delivered them to a down town office building. She paid $40 for Earl and $30 for Tommy. Faked birth certificates accompanied the children, she said, and she added that the woman did a flourishing business. The Cincinnati grand jury is investigating.

DIXON WINS STIFF GAME ON SATURDAY

On a line smash and Logan again got away with perfect interference for a 15 yard sprint around the left end. Pignatelli made five yards through left tackle and on the next play he was carried back for a loss. Logan tried another dash around left end but was halted without a gain and on the fourth down Rock Falls opened up with its first passing. G. McNicol intercepted the pass on his own 20 yard line. Dick McNicol advanced two yards through center and G. McNicol punted to the middle of the gridiron. Logan lost a yard on an attempted kick of the left end and then Rock Falls was penalized 15 yards for holding. Tompkins being the offender. Logan punted to Dixon's 35 yard line. G. McNicol made seven yards through center and O'Malley added two more to this picking a hole through right tackle. G. McNicol carried the ball for the other yards, which made it first down. G. McNicol chose the center for a two yard advance and O'Malley added three more around right end. G. McNicol punted to the middle of the field. Pignatelli gained three yards through left tackle and on the next play, Coss went through the line and carried Logan for a three yard loss on an attempted race around right end. Pignatelli made up the loss on the next play through center and Logan punted out of bounds in the center of the field. Dixon was unable to gain and G. McNicol punted to the visitors 20 yard line. Logan lost no time in returning the punt to the center of the field. G. McNicol punted back the ball being stopped within a foot of the Rock Falls goal and the half closed. Logan returned the punt to the 45 yard line.

Third Quarter

Rock Falls had sent Black to the bench and H. Pignatelli replaced him at left guard. "Chuck" Keys also appeared in O'Malley's place in the Dixon back field. The visitors kicked off to Dixon and the ball was punted right back to the middle of the lot. Logan put his toe into the oval again sending it to Dixon's 20 yard line and Dick McNicol brought it back to the 37 yard line. On an attempted criss cross, the Dixon line did not hold and Keys lost four yards. An attempted pass was blocked and G. McNicol punted to Rock Falls 35 yard line. Logan tried a pass to Pignatelli but the ball hit the ground. He followed with another attempt to pass and McNicol intercepted the ball on Rock Falls 40 yard line. G. McNicol punted to the ten yard line and Logan taking no chances returned the punt to the center of the field. G. McNicol made five yards around right end and on the next play, Keys fumbled but recovered after being carried for a five yard loss. G. McNicol again booted the ball to Rock Falls 22 yard line. Logan tried three passes, all being blocked and then punted to Dixon's 20 yard line. McReynolds taking the kick and running it back to the 35 yard mark. Keys went around left end for five yards and then G. McNicol punted to the Rock Falls 35 yard line. Logan made five yards around left end and Little advanced it four more on a criss cross, this being the first time he had been entrusted with the play.

Chicago, Nov. 16—When Austin ("Five Yards") McCarty, Chicago's famous gridiron player and human battering ram sits down to his three square meals he finds at the right of his plate a quart bottle of milk to which is attributed considerable of his ability to gain five yards on the football field every time he carries the ball, according to a report of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

"Red" Grange, Illinois' football ace, may have had a hard time keeping his hands off of the white bottles of the lacteal substance when he delivered ice to the Wheaton refrigerators last summer, but to McCarty three quarts of milk is a daily present to him from his fraternity.

In the trophy room of Austin's fraternity stands a silent monument to the American cow and her contribution to Chicago's football victories, it is learned. This trophy, reposing beside the loving cups won for athletic achievements, is the first milk bottle emptied by "Five Yards" McCarty when he entered the fraternity life of his school.

McCarty's success and perfect health, through his milk diet, has been so convincing that, it is reported, his room-mates have taken to drinking the farm beverage. The steward of Austin's chapter states that up until 1922, when McCarty became a member of the college organization, milk was used only for cooking purposes. However, this fall the steward finds that he must order 20 bottles of milk for each meal. Of these, 19 are pint bottles and one a quart size to be placed before McCarty's chair at the table. Upon this diet, the steward believes, the members of the chapter will soon outgrow their present clothing measurements.

European State Makes Progress in Many Different Ways

Baku, —(AP)—Azerbaijan, heretofore one of the most backward states in Europe, has embarked upon extensive irrigation, railroad, engineering and agricultural enterprises which are eventually expected to rank it with the more advanced sister state of Georgia.

One of the government's greatest problems is to reduce the illiteracy of the people. Only ten percent of the population is able to read and write. For centuries the country has lagged behind all its neighbors in intellectual progress. In an effort to simplify education of illiterate classes, the complicated Arabic alphabet has been substituted for the more simple Roman characters. Education of all classes is now compulsory.

Development of Azerbaijan is enhanced by the fact that the state has no political problems, the currency has been stabilized and all minorities have been given equality of position and opportunity in the promotion of national life.

The principal industries are agriculture and fishing. The state has nearly 300,000 acres of cotton under cultivation and the Soviet government is spending $20,000,000 on irrigation. The state is now producing several million pounds of cotton annually.

M. D. Orakhelashvili, president of the Trans-Caucasian republics which embrace Azerbaijan, Georgia and Armenia, said the Karata-Kaloki canal now being built will irrigate 150,000 acres. Several new railroad lines are under construction, the most important of which is the Julf-Baku line which will link Western Persia with Baku and other Caspian ports.

The part the American Near East Relief organization has played in forming the foundation for Azerbaijan's development is praised on every hand. Among the most destitute and ignorant the care which the relief offered through the American people is understood and appreciated. In those people, said Mr. Orakhelashvili, will be found the best expression of thanks and appreciation for the help given the thousands of orphans and refugees in this part of the world.

MILK KEEPS "FIVE YARDS" McCARTY IN PINK OF CONDITION

Too Much Efficiency By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower, hardware magnate, before leaving the city for two months, arranged for the care of his home while he is away. He fails to say anything about this to his three grown children, Constance, Billy and Alice. But they soon find it out, when H. Hedge, assigned to the job, takes control of the Brooke household, occupies the owner's suite and turns the library into an office. Hedge is busy in the improvised office while Billy is telling his sisters that the only way to get rid of the "octopus" is to throw him out. Constance is dubious but is willing to be shown. They start for the library.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

BILLY led the way. In his heart there were no misgivings. The only son of John W. Brooke was not a coward. A certain youthful irresolution may have often dominated him, but there was nothing craven in his nature. He was big and well conditioned. He had played a bit of scrub football, and had taken his hard knocks without showing yellow. The mere prospect of physical combat never dismayed him. Perhaps he was something of a braggart; but that was youth again.

It seemed inevitable that the efficiency man should be at his desk. He did not even glance up at the procession, being too busy reviewing buff-colored reports which dealt largely with the perversities of the time-clock.

"We've decided this can't go on," announced Billy abruptly.

Hedge looked up, after he had carefully checked off the report of Giovanni, the furnace-man.

"What can't go on?"

"You."

"Oh!"

For an instant it seemed that the conversation might terminate at that point. But Billy faltered for only a few seconds.

"You've got to get out," he said, with the necessary glare.

Alice slipped a nervous hand into her sister's.

"What for?" The curiosity in Hedge's voice was unmistakable.

"Because we won't stand for this business any more," answered Billy.

"What business?"

Billy Brooke glowered, which signifies more than mere glaring. The efficiency man did neither. He merely looked and appeared to be interested.

"Oh, there's going to be no argument about it," growled Billy. "Now, you get your hat and beat it. It's all off."

"Too busy," remarked H. Hedge, picking up another report card.

"Going?" demanded Billy.

"Not yet."

"When?"

Constance flinched. She sensed something incongruous in the question. It did not co-ordinate with the great plan. Yet Billy stood firm as a rock, and quite as imposing.

"Not until your father returns," remarked the efficiency man.

Billy coughed noisily and glanced at his sisters. He smiled significantly.

"Give you one minute," he announced.

"And then?"

"Out you go."

"How?"

"Front door."

"Who?"

"Me."

The admirable brevity of the dialogue was not lost upon H. Hedge, who nodded approvingly as he stood up. There was the utmost friendliness in his eyes. He was not so tall as Billy by something like two inches; nor was he so heavy by a considerable number of pounds. He did not betray any marked evidences of preparedness. Beyond question there was no anger in him.

"Well," he said slowly, "I presume that ends discussion."

The efficiency man sighed.

"All right," he murmured. "Go to it."

Billy advanced a step, then paused. The situation was unfamiliar to him, and somewhat disconcerting. He was not afraid of H. Hedge. If the pair of them had been on the street, or anywhere save under the Brooke roof-tree, there would have been no cause for hesitation. But now that he was face to face with physical combat, Billy hesitated.

"Look here," said Billy. "I don't want to muss you up any. You'd better go quietly."

H. Hedge simply shook his head. "You don't want my sisters to see a fight, do you?"

"No. But we might ask them to retire."

Constance and Alice showed no disposition to quit the library.

"It comes right down to this,"

"What is the dance?"

Constance, surprised out of speech by the intrusion, turned appealingly to the Van Nest youth.

"Fairly a fox," drawled that person, "with a few steps of his own."

"You invented them?" inquired Hedge.

"I guess so. Don't remember exactly; I dance quite a bit."

"It doesn't matter. The point I wish to make is, why do you waste so many steps?"

"Waste 'em?"

Constance's partner was a puzzled young man. "Who ever heard of a wasted dancing step?"

"Exactly. Waste them. I have been watching you dance. You start in a given direction, and you proceed so many steps in a straight line. Very good. Then there is a pause, which for purposes of rest, is undoubtedly permissible. Upon resuming progress, however, you then move in a sidewise direction—four steps—after which you continue the forward motion. You will readily see that those four steps are wholly unnecessary, consume an additional length of time, and bring about a delay in reaching the other end of the room."

Constance was flushing hotly and biting her lower lip. The Van Nest boy was standing with his mouth open. A small circle of curious young people had assembled itself around the efficiency man with wide eyes. Presently Wally Van Nest recovered speech.

"But say," he protested, "those side steps are part of the dance. Don't you understand?"

"Very well. Grant that. But why four? Why not two? You obtain exactly the same effect, that of moving crabwise, with fifty per cent of the effort. I will illustrate. Allow me, Miss Brooke."

And before Constance could move, the efficiency man stopped forward, bowed deferentially, and slipped an arm about her waist. A second later the ring of observers opened for them, and they glided rapidly forward across the floor. With Constance, the maneuver was purely automatic and involuntary. She was in a whirl of rage and confusion, but her feet moved with mechanical obedience to long training. She wanted to stop, but could not.

Eight steps forward they moved. H. Hedge with a mind wholly concentrated upon his work and executing his plans with the precision of a field marshal. They came to a pause.

"To the left, two," he commanded quietly.

NEXT: E. E. gives young Van Nest the air.

WHEAT EMBARGO—Van Couver, B. C., Nov. 14—(AP)—An embargo against shipments of wheat from the prairie provinces of Canada into Van Couver takes effect at midnight. This was ordered when large amounts of damp wheat had arrived here. Weather on the prairies has been extremely unfavorable for threshing.

'PHONE INDISPENSABLE IN PRESENT-DAY LIFE

The telephone has become, to the average American, so indispensable that he is likely to consider it just a part of his everyday equipment and to be almost unable to conceive of a state of affairs without plenty of telephones.

For that average American there is a surprise awaiting in a comparison of the number of telephones in various American cities, as compared with the distribution of instruments in foreign countries.

For instance, New York City has more telephones, with its upwards of 1,100,000, than has all of Great Britain.

Chicago's 750,000 telephones exceed by more than 150,000 all of the telephones in France.
